OVERVIEW

As business owners, we understand the value of expeditious, cost-effective solutions. We represent businesses of all sizes in disputes with individuals, other businesses, and government agencies including highly-complex, multi-party litigation before trial and appellate courts. Many of our corporate attorneys and business litigators have science backgrounds, including degrees in chemistry, biology, and engineering, which aid us in resolving conflicts on environmental and other technical matters. With attorneys who are certified as civil mediators and have taught law school courses on the subject for more than a decade, we regularly utilize alternative dispute resolution to obtain settlements that serve our client's interests and curtail their risks.
