OVERVIEW

Our litigators have extensive products liability experience. We have represented numerous Fortune 500 and smaller companies against product liability claims. Examples include defending a national products manufacturer against a series of lawsuits involving alleged allergic reactions to exposure to its products, defending medical and pharmaceutical product companies against product defect claims and defending asbestos claims. Our products liability experience is not just limited to defending claims. We have also prosecuted product liability claims including claims involving a natural gas odorizer and blood clotting products. This variety of representation provides us with valuable insight to sharpen our capacity to assist clients.
